

Grady Washington Jr.

December 27, 1954 - October 13, 2014

Grady Washington Jr., affectionately known as "Boodie J.", was born December 27, 1954. He was the sixth child on the totem pole of eight born to Grady Sr. and Leonna Washington.

Boodie attended Parkman Elementary School and Mosley Alternative School. Boodie wasn't one for following rules and school just wasn't his thing. Boodie was a free spirit.

Though Boodie wasn't the most religious person, he believed in God and accepted him in his life all the way up until he took his last breath.

Growing up on Princeton, Boodie J. was a permanent fixture of the neighborhood. He knew everybody and everybody knew him. He was best known for his bad feet and long reach. He was a fighter at heart and lived by the if I got you I got you creed. He would square up anytime and anywhere...He love to horseplay and slap box with the younger guys in the neighborhood, it was his way of showing them his love and how he cared for them. Boodie was definitely a favorite old timer. Boodie loved to laugh and would crack a joke at the drop of a hat. You could bet your life that every time he saw you, he would have something clever to say. If he did nothing else, he kept a smile on your face.

Boodie fell ill on Monday, October 27, 2014 where he made his final transition at 3:19 p.m. Although you won't see his physical form, his memory will remain because there will never be another "Boodie J." He was preceded in death by his parents, Grady Sr. and Leonna Washington; and his brother, Maurice "Poo."

Grady Jr. leaves to cherish his memories, one daughter, Andrea; four sisters, Eleanor, Pamela, Millicent (Gerald) and Orthria (Emmanuel); three brothers, William (Louise), Claude (Leonna) and Larry (Cecilia); sister-in-law, Brenda; three uncles; one aunt; two special friends, Mike and Maureen; and a host of nieces, nephews, cousins, friends and his entire Princeton Family.
